

IN THE SPECIFICATION

[0007] In accordance with one aspect of the invention, a damper assembly is installed in a housing of the type having a pair of side walls connected to a pair of end ~~wells~~ walls that define a conduit extending therethrough. The damper assembly is movable from an open position to a closed position to control fluid flow through the conduit. The damper assembly includes at least one damper blade operating in a normally open position.